

The Great Fire of London.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer and he wrote his diary in a secret code. He wrote posh cloths and a wig. He stopped writing his diary because he was loosing his eye site.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because it was a strong fire and the wind was strong. Also the houses were so close together.

Did you know?
The lead in St Pauls Cathedral was melted.
• Five people died.
The fire raged for days.

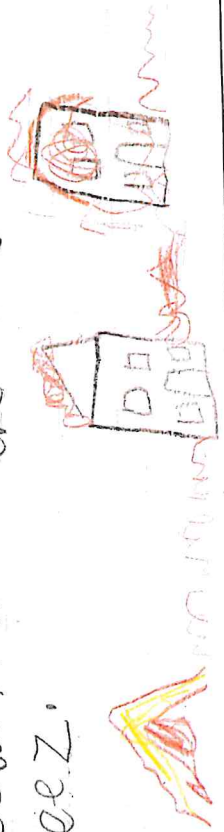

How did the fire start?
The fire started in 1666. It started on a pudding shop in Thomas Farmer's bakery. A spark came from the oven.

The gre at fire of london

How did the fire start
it started in september 2nd 1666.
It started in Pudding lane at Thomas Farriner's bakery. The fire spreaded all across London because a spark popped out of the oven.

Why did the fire so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the houses were so close and the houses were made of wood. Also there was a strong breeze.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer. Also he was a posh clothes and a wig. He kept his diary secret because he used a code. He buried his wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire.

Did you know?

- Five people died
- King Charles II helped put the fire out.
- The lead of St Pauls cathedral roof melted.

By Oscar

The Great Fire of London

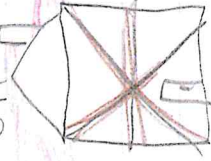

Who was Samuel Pepys?
 Samuel Pepys was a diary writer who wrote a diary in 1666. No one could read it. Samuel Pepys wrote about the great fire of London in 1666.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
 It spread so quickly they houses were close together and made of wood. Also the wind was blowing to the left.

How did the fire start?
 The fire started early in the morning in a bakery. A spark came out of an oven on 2nd September 1666.

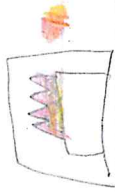

Did you know?
 The fire died down on the fourth day. Five people died. People went to the river themselves.

The Great Fire of London

How did the fire start?
It started on 2nd of September 1666 in Pudding lane. It began in Thomas Faffine's bakery by a spark from a oven. It is spreading from house to house.

Who was samure Pepys?

Samure pepys was a diary riter and he wrote about the great fire of London. He wrote why and how things they was a lot of money. He was using his eye site so he stopd riting.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the houses were close to gether and the wind was so long. Also it was a hot sunny summer

Did you know?

* people went to the river teams. Five people died.

The fire raged for 5 our days

The Great Fire of London

Who was Samuel Pepys?

Samuel Pepys was a diary writer he wrote about the Great Fire of London. He was wearing a posh clove and a wig. He stopped writing his diary he was losing his eye sight.

How did the fire start?
The fire started on Pudding Lane. A spark came out of Thomas Farriner's oven and it is spreading very fast. It started 2nd September 1666 early in the morning.

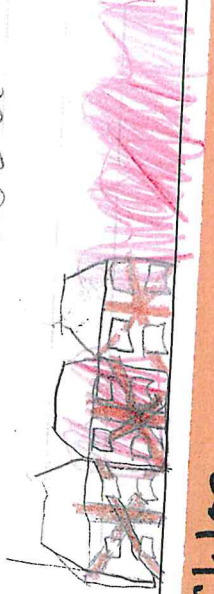

Did you know?

- After the fire you could see across the city.
- The fire raged for four days.
- King Charles II helped put the fire out.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together and the wind was very windy. Also they were made of wood.

By Chloe

How did the fire start?
The stores and of September 1666
in Pudding Lane.
It began in Thomas Farriner's
bakery

Ah

It spread so quickly
because the houses
were close together
and there is now big wind
Also the houses were made out of wood.

Oh

The great fire London

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys wrote
his diary in a secret code.

He bought his wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire.

Oh

Why do you know?
Five people died
King Charles II helped
He was the fire
The leather in the park
Canard was melted

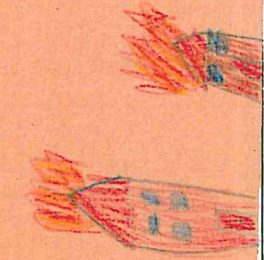

Why didn't the fire spread so quickly?
It spread quickly because the houses were so close together and they were made of wood. Also the wind was very strong and it was after a long dry summer.

How did the fire start?
The fire started in 2nd September 1666. It started in Thomas Farriner's bakery in Pudding Lane. A tiny spark popped from the bakery oven and burnt down other buildings in the street and then spread quickly to the city.

The Great fire of London

Did you know?

- After the fire you could see across the city
- The fire raged for four days!
- King Charles II helped put the fire out.
- People went to River Thames to escape.
- The lead in St Paul's cathedral roof melted!
- Five people died.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer who wrote about the great fire of London. He wrote in a secret code so no one knew what he was writing in his diary.
Samuel Pepys soon had to stop writing a diary because he thought he was losing his eye sight.

By Evie

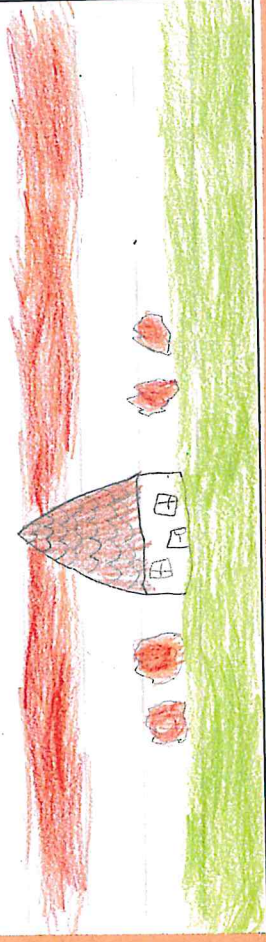

h kept fire at London

How did the fire start?

The fire started in Thomas Farriner's bakery on 2nd September 1666.

The bakery was in Pudding Lane and the fire started early in the morning when the bread was being baked.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
it spread so quickly because it was windy and the houses were made out of wood. Also it was very dry.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

He wrote a secret diary in a secret code. He wore posh clothes and a wig. Samuel Pepys had to stop writing his diary because he was losing his eye sight. He was writing all about the great fire of London. He has buried wine and cheese in a pit.

Did you know?

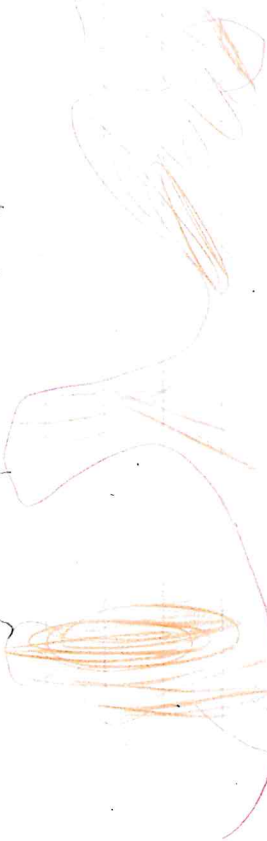

- o Five people died
- o The fire raged for days!
- o King Charles II helped put the fire out.

The Great Fire of London

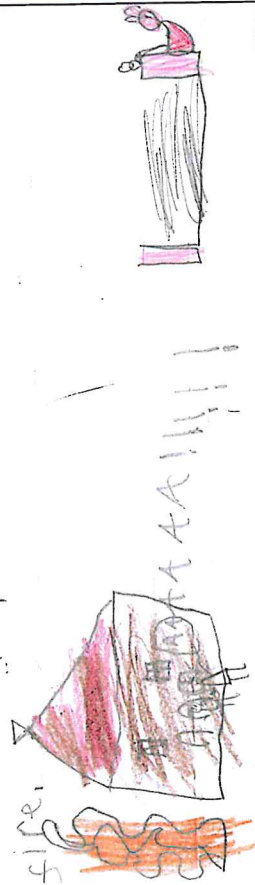

How did the fire start?

It started early in the morning in Thomas Farriner's bakery in Pudding Lane, on 2nd September 1666.

Why did the fire spread?

It spread so quickly because the houses were close together and the wind spread the fire. Also the houses were made of wood. Samuel Pepys helped to stop the

Who was Samuel Pepys?

He wore a wig and posh clothes.

He had a wife called Elizabeth.

He helped the king, king Charles the second to stop the fire. Mr Pepys kept a diary secret.

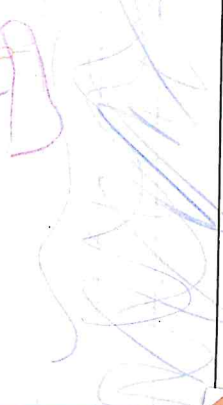

Did you know?

The bread in St Paul's Cathedral melted!

Five people died!

People went to the River Thames to escape.

The Great Fire of London

Did you know?

- Five people died.
- King Charles II helped put it out.
- The fire raged for four days!

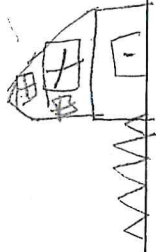

How did the fire start?
It started in 1666 early in the morning. It was the end of a hot dry summer. The place it started in was Thomas Farriner's bakery.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because it was Monday and dry. Also the houses weren't made of fire proof.

By Dash

How did the fire spread?
The fire spread so quick because the houses were so close to gether and made of wood. Also it was windy.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys wrote
about the great fire of London in his diary.
He bearded his wife and children in his pit to save them from the fireman

~~Samuel Pepys~~
~~Samuel Pepys~~

The Great Fire of London

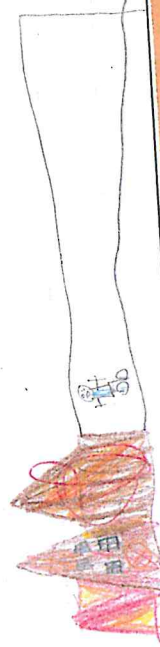

How did the fire start?
The fire started in 1666
on the second of September
It began in Thomas Farriner's bakery on Pudding Lane.

Did you know?
The Lead St Paul's Cathedral roof melted. Five people died.
The fire lasted for four days

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because of the wind and the houses were so close together. Also it was a dry and hot summer.

The Great Fire of London

How did the fire start
The fire started in 1666 early in the morning. It started in Thomas Farriher bakery with just a spark. The fire spread to other houses.

Did you know?
Five people died.
King Charles II helped put the fire out. After the fire you could see across the city.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys wrote a diary. He kept his diary secret by writing in a secret code. He wore posh clothes and a wig. He buried wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

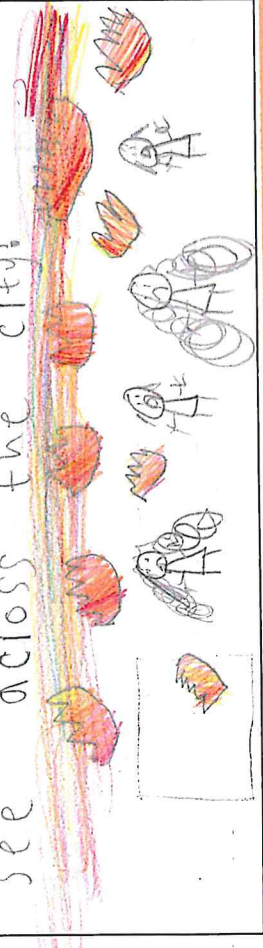

Samuel Pepys was a diary writer. He put the diary in a code. He wore posh clothes and a wig. He helped King Charles II to put out the great fire of London.

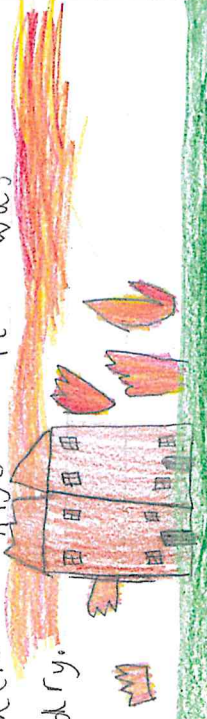

The Great Fire of London

How did the fire start?
The fire started in Thomas Fariner's bakery on 2nd September 1666. The bakery was in Pudding Lane and the fire started early in the morning.

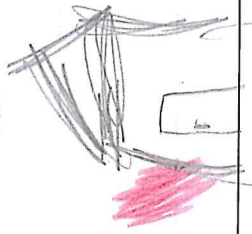

Did you know?
• King Charles II helped put the fire out! Five people died!
• After the fire, you could see across the city!

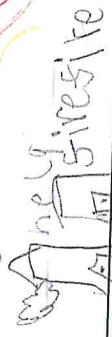

Why did the fire start?
Spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the house was close to the church. Also it was very dry.

How did the fire start?
The fire started in Thomas Farmer's bakery in Prading Lane.
The fire started in 1666 and
September

Why did the fire spread so quickly? It spread because the houses were made of wood and they were close together.
Also it was a hot dry summer and very windy.

The

great fire of London

Did you know?

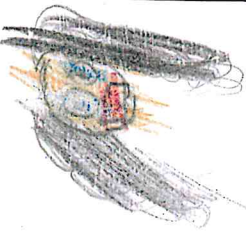

Five people died
after the fire you could see across the city
King Charles II heved put the fire out

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer who wrote about the great fire of London. He wrote in secret 'wrecking'.

By Sammy

Who was Samuel Pepys?

He wrote about the great fire of London.
He wore posh clothes and a wig!

How did the fire start?
The fire started 1666 and
September.
It began at a bakery in Pudding Lane.

The Great Fire of London

Did you know?
The great St Pauls Cathedral
Five people died
The fire lasted for six days

It spread so quickly
because the houses
were close together
and they were made out of wood.
Also it was a windy day.

By Willow

The Great Fire of London,

Who was Samuel Pepys? Samuel Pepys kept his diary a secret by writing in a secret code. He wrote about the great fire of London. He wore posh clothes and a wig. He buried wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire.

How did the fire start? The fire started in 1666 on the 2nd September. It began in Thomas Parker's bakery in Pudding Lane with a spark from an oven.

Did you know? King Charles II helped put the fire out. The Lord of the Manor led people to the river to escape.

Why did the fire spread so quickly? It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together and the houses were made out of wood. Also the houses exploded because the fire went so close to the houses.

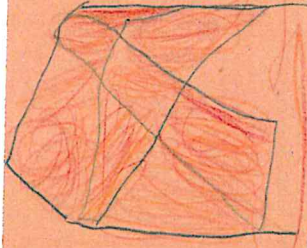

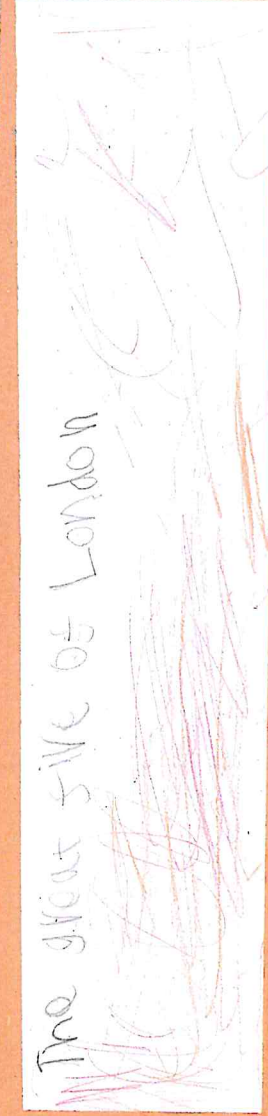

By Lacey

Who was Samuel Pepys?

Samuel Pepys was a diary writer who wrote about the Great Fire of London. He wrote a lot but he stopped writing because his eye sight failed.

The Great Fire of London

How did the fire start?

It started in Thomas Gurney's bakery in Pudding Lane. A spark came out of an oven and started a fire which spread to houses.

Why did the fire spread so quickly? It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together and the houses were made of wood. Also all the streets were six

did you know?

- The lead in St Paul's cathedral roof melted.
- After the fire you could see across the city.
- The fire raged for four days.

By Spencer

Did you know?

- Five people died!
- The fire raged for four days!
- After the fire you could see across London!

How did the fire start?

The fire started in 1666 in the morning; it started in September 2nd. The fire happened in Pudding Lane in Thomas Farrinor's bakery.

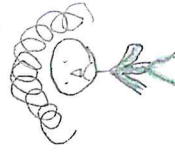

THE Great Fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quickly? It spread so quickly because the houses were made out of wood and the houses were too close to each other also the wind was blowing the fire.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

Samuel Pepys was a diary writer. He stopped writing his diary because his eye sight got worse. He helped London.

By Alan

The Great fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quickly because the wind helped it spread and the houses were close together. Also the houses there were made of wood.

Did you know?
• five people died.
• After the fire you could see across the city.
• King Charles II helped put the fire out.

How did the fire start?
The fire started in 2nd September 1666. The fire started in Thomas Fariner's bakery. The bakery was in Pudding Lane and the fire started early in the morning.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

Samuel Pepys helped King Charles II to put out the Great Fire of London. He wore pash clothes and a wig. He buried his wife and cheese in a pit.

The Great Fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
The fire spread so fast to the streets and the fire was in five.

Did you know?
The fire in St Paul's was a big fire in the roof of the church. Five people died but the fire was out.

When was Samuel Pepys saw the fire in the city a diary of a great fire in of the London.

How did the fire start?
The fire was in a bakery in Pudding lane. It started early in the morning and the fire was out.

By Yan

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly
because the houses were so close together. Also there was a strong wind.

The Great Fire of London

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary
writer. He wore posh clothes and a wig. He helped King Charles II to put out the great fire of London.

How did the fire start?
The fire started in Thomas Farriner's bakery on the 2nd of September 1666. It started early in the morning.

Did you know?

- The lead in St Paul's cathedral roof melted! King Charles II helped put the fire out! Five people died.

The Great fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quick?
It spread so quick because the wind helped it spread and the houses were close to each other. Also the houses were made of wood.

Did you know?
Five people died.
After the fire you could see across the city.
King Charles II helped put the fire out.

How did the fire start?

The fire started in 2nd September 1666. The fire started in Thomas Fariner's bakery. The bakery was in Pudding Lane and the fire started early in the morning.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

Samuel Pepys helped King Charles II to put out the Great fire of London. He wore pash clothes and a wig. He buried his wine and cheese in a pit.

The Great Fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the houses were made of wood and the houses were close together. Also it was the end of a hot dry summer.

Who was Samuel Pepys?

He kept his diary secret.

Samuel Pepys wrote a diary.

Samuel Pepys wrote about London.

He started writing because he thought that he was losing his eye sight.

How did the fire start?

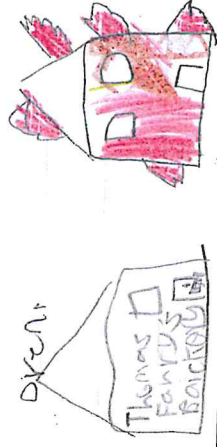

The fire started in 1666

the 2nd of September. It began at Thomas Farriner's bakery. A very hot flame came out of the oven.

Did you know?

Five people died & people went to the River Thames to escape.

The lead in St Paul's Cathedral roof melted. King Charles II helped put the fire out.

By Treeve

By Arina

The great fire of London

How did the fire start?

The fire started in 1666 2nd september. It began in Thomas Farriner's bakery shop. A spark dropped down the oven and the fire was huge they put water and water but it didn't work the wind blew the other way. Then the fire was as every one cherd.

Who was Samuel Pepps?

Samuel Pepps was a diary writer and wrote it in a secret code. He buried wine and cheese in a pit. But the fire could not get it. Samuel Pepps stopped writing because his eye sight got worse.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because there was a strong wind and it helped spread the fire quickly. Also the houses were made of wood.

Did you know?

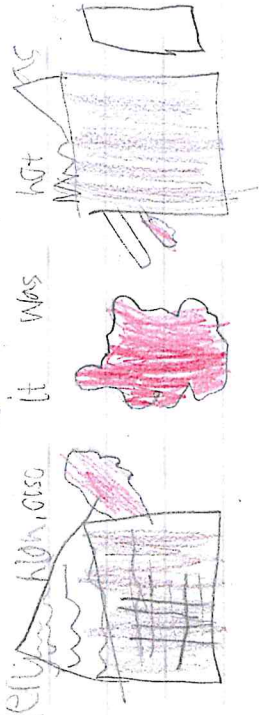

- Five people died!
- After the fire you could see across!
- The fire raged for four days

By Arina

The great fire of London

Why did the ^{max's} fire spread so quickly?
 It spread so quickly because every thing was made of wood. The wind was blowing, so it was hot and fire.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
 He wrote a diary and in a secret code he wrote about the great fire of London. He thought he was writing his eye sight so he stopped writing.

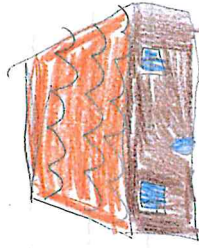

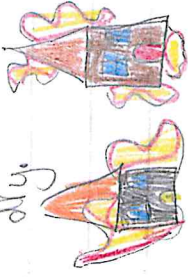

Five people died.
 The year of the fire began five days after the fire started.

By Max

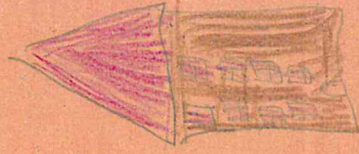

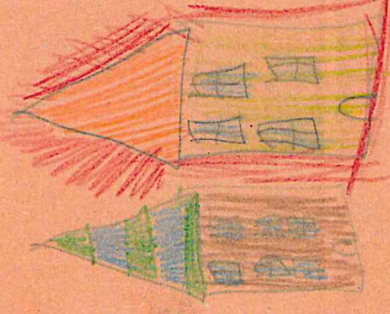

Who was Samuel Pepys?
 Samuel Pepys kept his diary a secret by writing in a secret code and he wore a wig and posh clothes. He buried wine and cheese in a pit. Also he had to stop writing a diary because he thought he was losing his eye sight.

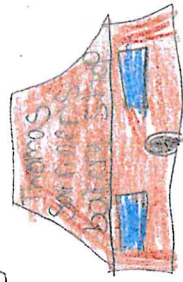

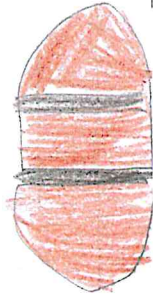

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
 It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together and were made of wood and stone. Also there was a long hot dry summer and the houses were all hot and dry.

The Great Fire of London

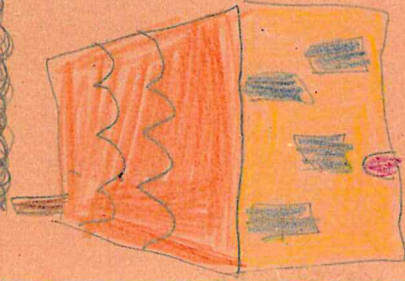

How did the fire start?
 Early in the morning on September 2nd 1666. In Thomas Farriner's bakery in Pudding Lane a tiny spark came out of the oven and it was going to spread all across the street.

Did you know?

- The lead in St Paul's Cathedral's roof melted!
- People went to the river Thames to escape.
- Five people died!
- King Charles II helped put out the fire.

By Darina

How did the fire start? Buried The fire started in the bakery in pudding lane. It started in the morning when a spark came out of an oven.

Why did the fire spread so quickly
It spread so quickly because the houses were close together and it was a hot and windy summer. Also the houses were made of wood and the sky was red and full of smoke.

The Great Fire of London

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer and he wrote it in a secret code.
He kept his diary secret by writing in a secret code. He buried his wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire. He had to stop writing his diary because his eye sight was failing.

Did you know
Fifteen people died after the fire. You could see across the city. The fire raged for four days. The lead in St Pauls cathedral roof melted. King Charles II helped but the fire out.

By Lillie

The Great Fire of London

Who was Samuel Pepys.
He was a diary writer and he lived in a house and wife in a pit. He wore posh clothes and a wig and he kept his diary in a secret code for his diary.

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together and houses were made of wood. Also the wind was so strong. And the fire was very strong.

By Aeris

How did the fire start?
It started on the second September in 1666. It started in Thomas Farriner's bakery. It came out of a spark of the oven. It started in Pudding Lane. It spread so quickly because the houses were so close together.

Did you know
The fire raged for four days
King Charles II helped stop the fire. Five people died.

The Great fire of London.

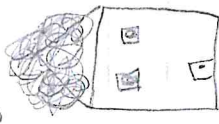

Did you know?

- 5 people died!
- you could see across the city!
- king charles II helped stop the fire!

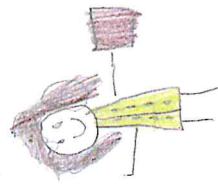

why did the fire spread so quickly.
It spread so quickly because the houses were close to gether and there was a strong wind. ALSO the sky was red and lots of smoke from the fire.

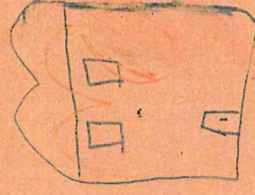

Who was samuel pepys?

samuel pepys wrote a diary about the Great fire of London.
samuel pepys wore posh clothes and a wig.

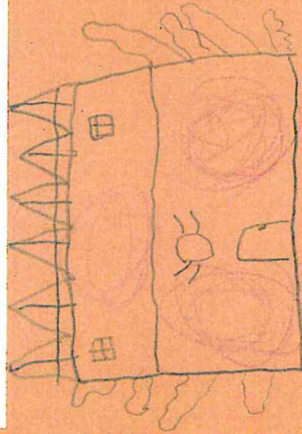

How did the fire start?

It started very early in the morning in Thomas Farrus bakery on pooding Lane, A Spark came out the oven.

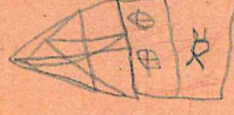

By Jessica

How did the fire start?
the fire started in a bakery on Pudding Lane. A spark came out of an oven on 2nd
September 1666

The Great Fire of London

Why did the fire spread so quickly?
I spread so quickly because it was made of wood and it was a windy summer.
Also the houses were close together. Some houses were blown up. To stop the fire spreading.

Did you know
The lead in St. Paul's cathedral roof melted! Five people died After the fire you could see across the city
the fire raged for four days!
People went to the River Thames to escape. King Charles II helped put the fire out.

Who was Samuel Pepys?
Samuel Pepys was a diary writer and he wrote it in a secret code so no body can not read it.
He buried his wine and cheese in a pit to save it from the fire.

I am a diary writer